- plan how to open a bank account
- identify elements of a bank statement
- manage a bank account
- discuss the use of debit cards.

Trainer briefing

This training guide has been written to be used by both experienced trainers and those for whom training delivery is new. We appreciate the resources available to you to deliver the training can vary greatly, from online delivery, delivery in a community space or delivery in-branch. We have tried to take all situations into account but if you need to vary the delivery of activities to meet the available resources then please feel free to do so.

Learners

When delivering this training remember the learners come from all walks of life. For some learners, English is a second language so they may struggle or need help from family members, even children, during the session.

This training may bring up some personal feelings for the learners, for example, those for whom money is tight. This might result in some emotions during the course. Encourage them to take a break if they need to. There are some frequently asked questions at the end of this guide to help you deal with any tricky situations.

Guide Format

The guide is written as though you are speaking directly to the learners; although this gives an idea of what to say, it's important to inject your personality into the training to make it authentic. You will also notice there are 'Facilitator notes' which give you tips on how to run an activity and sections labelled 'Look for'; these give the ideal answer and help you guide the learner to the correct answer.

Workbook

The workbook accompanying this training has lots of space for learners to make notes as they go through the session. It also contains anything needed for an exercise, meaning you can run this session without the slides if necessary. Towards the back of the workbook is a section explaining any banking terminology, useful links and details of charities that can offer support. Encourage the learners to take the workbook home with them.

Exercises

The exercises in this workshop are to be undertaken at your discretion, if you think a particular exercise isn't relevant or may confuse your learners then feel free to exclude or replace it.

Basic Bank AccountsAsk:

- Sheila applied for a current account but has been told by the bank that she doesn't qualify for one because she has no credit history.
- The bank recommends that she applies for a basic account instead.
- What is a basic bank account?

Explain:

- Basic bank accounts are for people who don't already have a bank account or don't qualify for a standard current account as they have low or no credit history.
- Basic bank accounts give you the essentials you need for everyday banking whilst you build up your credit score allowing you to get a current account in the future.

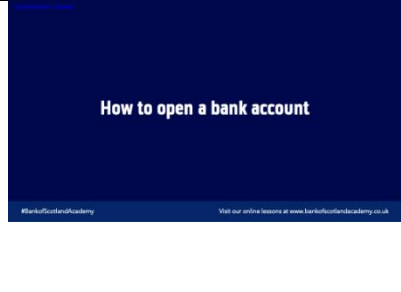

Facilitator note:

- If anyone wants to know more about credit scores, point them to the Borrowing Basics learning on the Bank of Scotland Academy website to find out more about credit scores – the link is in the workbook.

Explain:

- Sam takes his proof of ID (driving license) and address (Council Tax bill) with him to the bank to open his account.
- The staff in the bank walk Sam through what he needs to do – in this case, Sam is asked to complete an application form.
- There are charities that can help you through the process, especially if you're having difficulty because you don't have proof of identity or address.
- Once Sam has been accepted, the bank will send him details of his account number and sort code and a bank card (we'll talk more about his later). He will need this information to send or receive payments so it's important to keep it safe.

Facilitator note:

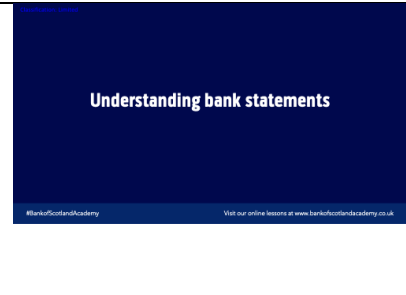

- Take a moment to check how the learners are feeling and adjust the training accordingly.

He must then enter these details each time he logs in. ● Sam knows that he should never share this password with anyone else. ● Some banks may have the option for you to set up a biometric password when accessing via your mobile device. This is usually in the form of your fingerprint. This creates a secure way to log onto your account. Ask:

Direct debits

- A direct debit is when you give a company permission to take money from your bank account on an agreed date.
- Once you've set them up, these payments will be taken monthly by the company.
- The company will need to inform you of any changes to the date or amount to be taken.
- You can cancel a direct debit at any time.
- You can cancel a direct debit at any time, however, check with your bank or building society you have given them enough notice.
- The Direct Debit Guarantee protects you if there is an error.

Direct debits

Explain:

- We've already discussed deposits and withdrawals – let's look at some of the other things you might see in your account.

Ask:

- Have you heard of direct debits? A lot of companies like you to set them up to make regular payments to them, such as your electricity or gas bill.

Explain:

- A direct debit involves you giving a company permission to take money from your bank account on an agreed date.
- Once you've set them up, these payments will be taken monthly by the company.
- The company will need to inform you of any changes to the date or amount to be taken as stated in the direct debit guarantee.
- You can cancel a direct debit at any time, however, check with your bank or building society you have given them enough notice. Generally, banks and building societies require at least a day's notice before the direct debit is due to be paid. As well as cancelling the direct debit at the bank, you should also contact the service provider advising them you are cancelling the contract, otherwise you may be liable for additional payments and fees.
- The Direct Debit Guarantee protects you if there is an error in the payment of your Direct Debit, for example if a payment is taken on the incorrect date or the wrong amount is collected.

Banking Essentials Workshop

		Discuss: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Get the group to discuss which companies might want them to set up a direct debit and how this can benefit them by helping to pay bills.
Page 10		Standing Orders Explain: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • You could also choose to set up a standing order. These are like direct debits, but you are in control of the amount, when they are paid, and how long for. • For example, you might want to set up a regular payment to a family member. You will need to input some details. • Using a standing order means that you don't have to remember to pay them each time. • Once you set someone up as a payee (a person you are paying money to), you won't need to enter their details again if you want to set up a different payment for them in the future. • You could also set up a standing order into one of your own accounts – for example, if you want to pay a certain amount into your savings account each month.

Banking Essentials Workshop

		Discuss: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Encourage the class to discuss whether standing orders will be useful for them and what type of things they could use them for.

Facilitator note:

- This section is optional depending on your learners, you can choose to skip this section or just run through it at a high level if you think it will confuse them.

Ask:

- Sam has received a cheque through the post. Have any of you come across a cheque?

Explain:

- A cheque (or check) is a paper form used to give money from one person or business to another.
- Cheque books are no longer provided as standard when a new bank account is opened, so if you need one, you may need to request one.
- If you get a cheque from someone, you can take it to a bank and redeem it for the amount stated on it. The bank then processes the cheque, taking the amount from the account of the person who gave you the cheque. You will usually see the amount in your bank account within a few days.
- You can pay cheques in at your bank and at the Post Office.

Facilitator note:

- Introduce the topic and read out the section objective as follows:
- By the end of this section, you should be able to:
 - discuss the use of debit cards.

Explain:

- Sam was given a debit card once he was accepted for a bank account.

Facilitator note:

- Be aware though that some of the basic bank accounts only give a cashpoint card.

Ask:

- Sam decides to use his debit card to pay for the weekly shopping in the local supermarket. What are the different ways could he use the debit card to pay at the checkout?

Look for:

- Sam has seen other people use their cards to pay for shopping and they either insert their card into the machine (chip and pin), or tap the card on the machine (contactless).

Explain:

- Let's look at those two options in more detail.

Chip and pin vs contactless

#BankofScotlandAcademy

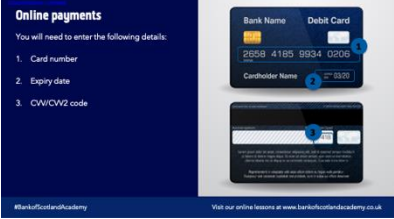

Visit our online lessons at www.bankofscotlandacademy.co.uk

Chip and pin and contactless

Explain:

- When you use the chip and pin method of payment to make a purchase you will need to insert your card into the machine and type in the unique PIN (personal identification number) you were given. Only you will know this PIN, remember not to share the pin with anyone as this will allow them to make payments using your card.
- Once the transaction is approved, remove the card. The bank will take the cost of the purchase out of your bank account.
- If you don't have enough money in your account for the purchase, the transaction will fail.
- If your purchase is under a certain amount (most banks let you set your own limit), you can pay using the contactless method. To do this simply tap your card against the machine.
- You might find that sometimes you are still asked to pay using chip and pin; this is to prevent fraud, especially if this is the first time you've used your card.
- Once the machine beeps it will process the transaction – again if you don't have enough money in your account the transaction will fail.
